A low-angle photograph of the facade of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Moscow. The image captures the lower portion of the building, showing its ornate classical architecture. The facade is composed of light-colored stone or plaster, featuring a series of tall, fluted columns supporting a heavy entablature. Above the columns, there are arched windows and decorative moldings. At the top of the visible section, a large, ornate pediment is visible, topped by a cross. To the right, a portion of a dome with a reddish-brown patina is visible against a clear blue sky. The perspective is looking up, emphasizing the height and grandeur of the structure.
